REPORT OF THE CHAIRMAN TO CONTRIBUTORS, TO THE GENERAL COMMITTEE, AND TO THE PUBLIC

The movement represented by this Committee had its origin late in August, 1917, in a visit of the Chairman to a series of moving pictures in New York portraying the fighting on the Italian front. Between the acts the urgent need of ambulances on that line was presented by a representative of the "American Ambulance in Italy," an organization set on foot by two members of the Yale Class of 1918, Mr. Beverly R. Myles, who became its director, and Mr. Evarts Scudder, who went to Italy as its representative. Mr. Myles and Mr. Scudder had both previously been connected with the American Field Service in France, and, on its absorption by the U. S. Government, they had the happy thought of establishing and operating a similar service in Italy, where, save for an English contingent of fifty-six cars under Mr. Trevelyan, no outside help of this sort had been given.

On consultation, the above Committee of 43 was hastily organized, and subscriptions were at once opened by the Chairman. The first goal was the purchase of fifty Ford chassis known to be in Milan, but, by the time funds had been provided for these, it was discovered that there were fifty more, and the work was continued, the hundred cars being bought, completed, equipped and delivered within fifteen weeks from the organization of the Committee. The first contribution was received August 31, 1917, and was given in honor of the American poet, the late Edmund Clarence Stedman.

The original plan was to have the ambulances purchased by the "American Ambulance in Italy," above referred to, but after some $50,000 had been transferred to it, and by it remitted to Italy, a complication arose, as the result of which that organization retired from the field, in order that the American Red Cross might have a free hand in the operation of an ambulance service. At that time, October 10, 1917, Harry Nelson Gay, Esq., of Rome, who in 1908 had handled the funds of the American Red Cross for the relief of the Messina sufferers, became the official representative in Italy of the "American Poets' Ambulances in Italy," and from that time had entire charge of the contracts, construction, and delivery of the ambulances purchased by the funds of the Poets' Committee, including the unexpended balance turned over to him by Mr. Scudder.

The Chairman desires to recognize the value of the preliminary work of the "American Ambulance in Italy" in initiative, in enthusiasm, in the early work in Milan and in actual construction, the type adopted for the ambulances having been worked out by Mr. Scudder and his assistant, Mr. Eugene Brownlee.

From the time of Mr. Gay's assumption of the work, its prompt execution has been due to his devotion, experience and judgment, and to the fact that whenever necessary he placed his own private credit at the disposition of the Committee in order to obtain and expedite contracts.

After the withdrawal of the "American Ambulance," the Red Cross having still under consideration the operation of an Italian service, our first fifty ambulances were delivered to Italy through the Intendenza Generale (quarter-master's department). By arrangement with Mr. Gay, every car was tested by it before delivery and no payments were made until this had been done. On the 4th of November, ten days after the beginning of the Austrian advance, forty of these were in service and the others were delivered on the 15th. Thus the "American Poets' Ambulances in Italy" had the honor and the privilege of being the first American organization to place American ambulances on the Italian front.

On the 13th of November, war against Austria having just been declared, Major Grayson Murphy arrived in Rome from Paris to organize the work of the American Red Cross. Consultation was held with Mr. Gay, and it was decided that the second fifty cars should be consigned to the American Red Cross to operate for Italy. The entire product of the Committee's activity is a good-will offering from Americans to Italy, and has been so accepted by the authorities. This product includes, in addition to the hundred Milan ambulances, a by-product of thirty-seven field hospitals (seven of barracks and thirty of tents), made possible by the rise of exchange and the assumption of the upkeep, first, by the Italian Government and, again, by the Red Cross, and also by Mr. Gay's careful investment. These ambulances and hospitals were all in commission by December 15, fifteen weeks from the inception of the work. The most recent contributions have provided in addition one or two ophthalmic units, besides several Ford ambulances for special mountain first-line service.

The Italian response to this aid and sympathy from Americans has been of the most spontaneous and appreciative character. In addition to the official acknowledgments of General Zaccone, Intendente Generale, Count V. Macchi di Cellere, Italian Ambassador at Washington, and General Emilio Guglielmotti, Military Attache of the Embassy, Mr. Marconi, in his speech at the Campidoglio in Rome, January 15, and Mr. D'Annunzio have publicly mentioned the work, and in many places where the ambulances have gone they have been wreathed with flowers, and in Milan, December 13, and elsewhere, they have been greeted with special honors from the authorities. This is worthy of particular attention, since the object of the movement was not merely to furnish material aid but also to give expression to the sentiments of love and admiration for Italy which are so widespread in America, and upon which, as the event has proved, the Committee has not counted in vain. Its correspondence is full of the most generous expression of this feeling.

In addition to mobilizing the good-will of America to the advantage of Italy, a characteristic of the work has been its celerity. The injunction to Mr. Gay at the start was to "subordinate everything to speed," and his remarkable achievement in point of time shows how closely he adhered to this slogan. It was a matter of constant solicitude to see that there was no unnecessary delay in the transmission of funds to Mr. Gay, and, as fast as these were received, they were immediately converted by him into ambulances. The Committee feels under the deepest obligation to him for the execution of this onerous work, of which he has had the entire responsibility.

Acknowledgment must also be made to the American Red Cross for its early expression of its "complete sympathy" with our undertaking and for its consent to underwrite the last twenty-five of the Milan group while the Poets' Committee was awaiting the receipt of promised funds.

No deduction was made from the fund for salaries or overhead charges, nor have there been any commissions or paid collectors. The total amount of over $173,058.13 has been obtained at a total expense in America for administration of $991.95, including printing, postage, and telegrams (chiefly cablegrams), this being at the rate of about one-half of one per cent. Through the courtesy of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, its office facilities have been at the disposition of the Committee.

The chairman desires to acknowledge the helpful co-operation of the officers and members of the Committee, which, in the case of Mrs. Virginia Fraser Boyle, of Memphis, and Professor Katharine Lee Bates, of Wellesley College, has resulted in two ambulances each. Space would fail to permit acknowledgment to all those who have co-operated toward the success of this movement by securing large or small amounts, but mention must be made of Mrs. Benjamin Miller, of Philadelphia, who by herself, and by her friends, through the Comitato pro Italia of the Emergency Aid of Pennsylvania, provided five ambulances, and to the Chicago Tribune, which procured five, and to the Indianapolis Star for the one named in honor of James Whitcomb Riley. Full credit for all other special funds is given in the donors' list.

The press has been of much assistance. The Boston Transcript, the New York World, the New York Evening Sun, and other newspapers have given generously of their space to the propaganda, while the New York Times was conspicuously helpful in its editorial support, and also printed weekly summaries of the detailed contributions which were deposited with it.

Acknowledgment is made of gifts of printing to the extent of $56.65 by the DeVinne Press; of cable tolls by the Western Union Telegraph Company, $100; of a design of a poster by Mr. F. G. Cooper (reproduced in miniature at the head of this report), and of electrotypes of it by Mr. F. D. Casey; and of co-operation by prompt remittances to Italy on the part of the Union Exchange National Bank. Poems specially written to aid the fund were contributed by Olive Tilford Dargan, Theodosia Garrison and Grace Denio Litchfield.

The Chairman wishes to make special record of the unique and devoted service to the Committee since its organization rendered by Mrs. Grace D. Vanamee, who, as assistant to both the Chairman and the Treasurer, at great sacrifices of time, convenience, and even of health, has conducted the arduous details of the fund with rare intelligence and system, and with much helpful suggestion. Her accounts have been pronounced "a model" in their clear, complete and responsible record of a public subscription.

Following are the names of the donors of special cars and of the persons in whose memory, or honor, they have been presented, the general contributions being included in the list as gifts of "American Lovers of Italy." In addition is presented the complete detailed list of contributions. Finally the chairman presents a general statement of the vouchered and audited accounts of the Treasurer, Mr. George A. Plimpton. The auditing of those accounts by Messrs. Lingley, Baird and Dixon of 120 Broadway, New York, is a generous contribution on their part to the fund.

It is confidently believed that much international good-will will result from these inscriptions, especially those relating to Italian, French and English poets, patriots and martyrs. The American poets have done honor not only to many persons who were lovers of Italy, but to the chief men and women of distinction in American literature, as well as to other distinguished persons related to Italy and to the present conflict of arms.

One particular association with our work stirs deeply our sorrow and our pride and has a note which is both tragic and dramatic. The last ambulance purchased with the Poets' funds pays tribute to the young American, William Davenport Platt, who, in the heroic performance of his duty, was killed in Mestre, Italy, in the courtyard of a Red Cross hospital, by a German bomb. Mr. Platt was to have driven the first of our cars, the one given by his aunt, Mrs. J. E. Platt Stone, and in closing its work the Committee feels the special appropriateness of using the last of the general contributions for an ambulance in his honor.

ROBERT UNDERWOOD JOHNSON, Chairman.

NOTE. It is very much to be regretted that the foregoing report, completely audited so far as the American activities are concerned, cannot be brought down beyond January 31, 1918, in respect to those in Italy, Mr. Gay having cabled that the necessary vouchers cannot be had from the Italian government until June 1. As soon as these are received a supplementary account, duly audited, will be sent to the New York Times for publication, and duplicates of it may then be had at the office of the Chairman.
